I am tak - ing a trip, On a beau - ti - ful ship,
I will land on the shore, With the girl I a - dore,

Out on the deep sea of love. I am sail - ing a - way, To that Hap - py thro' life we will stray. And I'm sure I'll ne'er part, From my love - land bay, 'Neath the sil - very stars a - bove.

dear sweet heart, And to her each day I'll say.

4 Chorus

So I'll an - chor my ship in your har - bor of love, There to bathe in the joy of your smile, ————— And my love ev - er new, Will live just for you, ————— Though temp - est's sur - round us the while. ————— And when trou - ble is near, I'll nev - er fear, For I'll cling all the clos - er to shore, And I'll an - chor my ship, At the end of the trip, With you

now and for - ev - er more.

rit.

The musical score consists of four systems of music. Each system includes a vocal line with lyrics and a piano accompaniment with treble and bass staves. The lyrics are: 'trou - ble is near, I'll nev - er fear, For I'll', 'cling all the clos - er to shore, And I'll', 'an - chor my ship, At the end of the trip, With you', and 'now and for - ev - er more.'. Performance markings include 'rall.' (rallentando) and 'ad lib' (ad libitum) above the vocal line, and 'rit.' (ritardando) below the piano accompaniment in the final system.

Mother 'O Mine

IS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MOTHER SONG OF THEM ALL.

You ask me why I wrote Mother o' Mine. Well, the idea came to me one night, when I was tired and weary, and my thoughts went back to the time when I was young again with mother near.

And oh! the joy of it all as memory carried me back over the rough, billowy sea of life to that period when all was quiet and contentment, and a mist came into my eyes as I heard her voice singing to me the old, sweet songs as of yore, while she ran her dear fingers through my hair.

So I wrote and published "Mother o' Mine," in honor of the one who gave me life, and I dedicate it to all mothers, for be it never forgotten, we may have a hundred sweethearts, but only one mother.

No Home Can Afford to be Without "Mother o' Mine."
