THOUGHTS AND TEARS.

SOME thoughts are never heard or told,
They wander unconfess'd
Through happy pathways known of old,
But still, yes still remember'd best!
Ah! love, believe me if you will,
Or deem it all untrue;
I cannot guard my thoughts, for still—
Yes, still they wander back to you.

Some thoughts must ever go unspoken,
Some tears may never softly fall;
Take mine, unshed, untold for token,
I love you still, in spite of all.

Some griefs must ever rest untold,
Though to our wistful eyes,
When thoughts the golden past unfold
Great tears will oft unbidden rise!
Remember, pity, or forget,
Whiche'er your heart may do,
I dare not shed my tears that yet
Are fain to fall for you.

Some thoughts must ever go unspoken,
Some tears may never softly fall;
Take mine, unshed, untold for token;
I love you, yes, in spite of all!
