THE plantation songs known as "spirituals" are the spontaneous outbursts of intense religious fervor, and had their origin chiefly in camp meetings, revivals and other religious exercises.

They were never "composed," but sprang into life, ready made, from the white heat of religious fervor during some protracted meeting in camp or church, as the simple, ecstatic utterance of wholly untutored minds, and are practically the only music in America which meets the scientific definition of Folk Song.

Success in singing these Folk Songs is primarily dependent upon deep spiritual feeling. The voice is not nearly so important as the spirit; and then rhythm, for the Negro's soul is linked with rhythm, and it is an essential characteristic of most all the Folk Songs.

It is a serious misconception of their meaning and value to treat them as "minstrel" songs, or to try to make them funny by a too literal attempt to imitate the manner of the Negro in singing them, by swaying the body, clapping the hands, or striving to make the peculiar inflections of voice that are natural with the colored people. Their worth is weakened unless they are done impressively, for through all these songs there breathes a hope, a faith in the ultimate justice and brotherhood of man. The cadences of sorrow invariably turn to joy, and the message is ever manifest that eventually deliverance from all that hinders and oppresses the soul will come, and man—every man—will be free.

Thus saith the Lord, bold Mo - ses said,

The first system of the musical score. The vocal line (treble clef) begins with a rest, followed by the lyrics "Thus saith the Lord, bold Mo - ses said,". The piano accompaniment (grand staff) features a bass line with eighth-note patterns and a treble line with chords and a melodic line. A forte (f) dynamic marking is present at the beginning of the piano part.

Let my peo-ple go, If not I'll smite your

The second system of the musical score. The vocal line continues with the lyrics "Let my peo-ple go, If not I'll smite your". The piano accompaniment continues with similar patterns. A sempre f (always forte) marking is placed above the piano part in the third measure.

first born dead, Let my peo-ple go.

The third system of the musical score. The vocal line concludes with the lyrics "first born dead, Let my peo-ple go." The piano accompaniment continues with eighth-note patterns in the bass and chords in the treble. The system ends with a double bar line.
