There's a flower garden ev'ry - bod-y ought to know, It's filled with beauti-ful flowers That bloom each day a-mong the Lil-y was so weary that she started in - to weep, So runs this bot-an-y sto-ry Told by the pret-ty Morn-ing bow - ers If you'll lis-ten close-ly I will tell you what I've heard I heard it just the oth-er day right Glo - ry Clouds a - bove had warn'd them all that it was going to rain But Mis - ter Sun and Mis - sus Moon would from a lit-tle bird, It's such a scan-da - lous sto - ry, A - bout a pret - ty Morn - ing Glo - ry!

call a - round a - gain, And while the moonbeams were gleam - ing, These pret - ty flow - ers went on dream - ing.

CHORUS

When the Morning Glo-ries climb'd up the gar-den wall Just to kiss a wild sun - flow-er ten feet tall Two oth-er flow-ers saw them and be-gan to talk, The old Ger-an-ium and the Hol-y Hock Then they told ev-'ry flow-er that they met down the gar-den walk, (in fra-grant talk) But the crimson Rosebud said, "O ver-y well Go and tell it to the oth-er flow-ers in the dell?" The Daisies won't tell, they ab-so-lute-ly re-fuse_ So let the Lil-y of the Valley go and spread the news, Said the Vi-o-let "I've got the Flow-er gar-den Blues. When the Blues"
